HISTORY AND COINS

The Art of the Shekel and Its Meaning

By Wolf Wirgin, ANA 18024

A follow-up on The Dating of the Shekel by J.U. Gillespie, on the occasion of its republication as a reprint from The Numismatist.

HERETOFORE The First Book of Maccabees was the only literary source that had been consulted for the dating of the "thick" shekels. The passage according to which the people began to date their documents for the first year of Simon Maccabaeus (xiii 42) served as the point of departure from the attribution of the shekels to Simon, as was also the letter of Antiochus VII Sidetes giving him the right of coinage (xv 6). Therewith the coins were brought into connection with historical events.

In accordance with this line of thought, G.F. Hill (of the British Museum) included the shekels in his book Historical Greek Coins, a work in which the author compiled historical data for one hundred ancient coins of outstanding importance. In the preface to the book Hill stresses the significance of the numismatic material for historiography as follows:

Every coin that has been issued under public authority since the invention of coinage is a historical document.

... by the exhibition of a few instances of the commentary which numismatics can furnish to literary history, it is possible to show that there is a whole mine of information lying ready to be worked and that no historical problem should be attacked without asking: 'How will the coins help us?'

As should be expected, Hill puts the shekels in context with I Macc; other literary sources of the period are not mentioned. However, the historian who may accept the invitation to avail himself of this "whole mine of information lying ready to be worked" is also confronted with the frank admittance that "we do not know" why the symbols of "a chalice of some kind" and a "triple flower," as he calls them, were placed on the coins. It seems, therefore, that the whole mine of information is not lying ready as long as the meaning and the purpose of the symbols are not revealed. The point is that Hill's approach to the relationship of coins with history will merely help to write history of coins, but the true purpose of his book, as stated in the preface, was to provide material for history from coins.

At this point it seems appropriate to resume the trail of investigation left off by G.F. Hill. In the following we shall go into details concerning the identification of the two symbols, the vessel and the plant, and we shall answer the question why they were placed on the shekels. As it will be shown, this knowledge is decisive both for the history of the coins and for their significance as a source of historical information derived from coins.

Generally, the vessel on the obverse of the shekel is thought to be a chalice, but earlier writers saw in it the Biblical "pot of manna." The later development of the opinions relative to this subject is mainly found in the writings of A. Reifenberg and P. Romanoff.

Reifenberg's interpretations vary in his books on coins and Jewish art, but in general he clings to the idea of a chalice, once described as with a beaded rim (Palaestinensische Kleinkunst, Berlin 1927), another time as having a cover and not a rim of beads (Ancient Jewish Coins, Jerusalem 1947). Once Reifenberg compared it with a clay vessel (Pal. Kleinkunst), the type frequently found in excavated tombs and, for lack of any better information, called a "fruit stand" by archaeologists. In another instance Reifenberg calls this same clay vessel a "censer" (Denkmaeler der juedischen Antike, Berlin 1937). He also compares the vessel on the shekel with cups standing on the show-bread table as depicted on the famous relief on the Arch of Titus in Rome. However, these cups look rather different since they have no stand. The "chalice" according to Reifenberg was used for libations, but he adds that "it might, at the same time, have had a symbolic significance at the 'cup of salvation' (Psalms cxvi 13, 14)."

These interpretations by Reifenberg must be questioned for several reasons. In the Mishnah, tractate Sukkah iv 9,10, the ritual of libation is described in detail and very clearly:

The water-libation — what was the meaning of this? They used to fill a golden flagon holding three logs with water from Siloam. When they reached the Water Gate they blew on the shofar a sustained, a quavering and another sustained blast. The priest whose turn of duty it was went up the altar-ramp and turned to the right where were two silver bowls. R. Judah says:

they were of stone, but their appearance darkened because of the wine. They had each a hole like a narrow spout, one wide and the other narrow, so that both bowls emptied themselves together, wine flowing out more slowly than water. The bowl to the west was for water and that to the east was for wine. But if the flagon of water was emptied into the bowl of wine, or the flagon of wine into the bowl of water, that sufficed.

As was the rite on a weekday so was the rite on a Sabbath save that on the eve of the Sabbath they used to fill with water from Siloam a golden jar that had not been hallowed and put it in a special chamber. If it was upset or uncovered, they refilled it from the laver (hallowed water-basin), for wine or water which has been uncovered is invalid for the Altar.

We also have pictorial representations illustrating the act of libation, but indeed not from Jewish sources. On these depictions the offerer, whether priest or victorious general, is shown standing at the altar and holding a patera, a shallow, plate-like bowl, at an angle so that the liquid can run down on the altar immediately after an attendant had emptied a pitcher into the patera. This procedure means that the libation must not be performed by emptying a container directly on the altar; the offered liquid should rather first be poured into an intermediate vessel from which, then, it runs off by itself onto the altar. With minor differences, this is a procedure as described in the Mishnah and in which the use of a chalice is definitely precluded because the libation cups in the Temple were provided with holes or spouts of different width through which the liquids ran down onto the altar. It is impossible that a vessel in the shape of the one represented on the shekel could at any time have been used in the fashion prescribed for the libations ritual.

Shekel from G.F. Hill, Greek Historical Coins

It is likewise inappropriate to bring the Psalmist's "cup of salvation" into the discussion. The term is used in a strictly poetical form. We know of no ritual in the Temple during which a "cup of salvation" had to be raised, nor is such a cup in practical use mentioned anywhere in the Bible or in the Mishnah.

P. Romanoff's approach to the problem of our vessel is strictly scholarly and in this it differs basically from that of Reifenberg. Romanoff rejects the identification of the vessel as a chalice for various reasons. The dotted rim would make drinking almost impossible and furthermore, drinking of wine was forbidden in the Temple. Wine is symbolized on coins by vine leaves and clusters of grapes; cups were used for sacrificial blood only, but nothing would indicate such purpose here, since the emblems on coins indicate, if any, agricultural rather than animal sacrifices (Jewish Symbols on Ancient Jewish Coins, Philadelphia 1944). Romanoff likewise rules out an allusion to the ritual wine libation. Instead he sees in the vessel the golden cup "that contained the Omer and was used on the second day of Passover when a measure of barley, a tenth of an ephah, equal to one and a half pints of fine flour, was offered to the Temple as first-fruits of the field." This, then, is not too far from the so-called fruit-stand used by Reifenberg for comparison.

The passages quoted conscientiously by Romanoff from the Bible and the Mishnah deal with the "Omer" as the quantity to be sacrificed, but nowhere refer to a vessel that contains it; nor do we know of such a vessel mentioned elsewhere, specifically not of one for measuring the flour for the "Omer" sacrifice. Just to the contrary, there is a note in the Mishnah that it was measured with the standard measuring cup.

It seems that Romanoff himself thought his theory to be somewhat far-fetched, for at the beginning of his book we find this significant remark:

The type resembling a cup, as pointed out later, is the omer, its design resembling the Temple laver. The drinking cup, kantharos, of Dionysus usually has handles and was shaped differently. The design on the Jewish coins is extremely rare in numismatics. The closest resemblance to the omer is a basin type on the coin of Pergamum (Anson, Numismata Graeca, part I, 357). In this respect it parallels the idea of the omer.

In this note Romanoff hit upon an idea that was strikingly new. Unfortunately, he abandoned it at the very moment of discovery and omitted to mention the laver again anywhere in his book. However, the resemblance pointed out by Romanoff, after further investigation, has proven to be fruitful. Research in this direction had the result that the idea which seemed at first to offer only a possibility has unexpectedly come close to certainty. (See "Biblical Numismatics and Biblical Archaeology" in The Numismatist, May 1952.)

The laver in the Temple of Jerusalem was in the category of its most holy furnishings. It was made of bronze and it imparted ritual sacredness to the water placed in it. The water drawn from the laver was used for washing, and thus sanctifying, the hands and feet of the priests as prescribed in the Bible (Ex. xxx 19-21). According to the Mishnah, the water from the laver was also used for water libations, as we have seen above, described in the tractate Sukkah (iv 10). Both in the Bible and the Mishnah, the word for the laver is kiyyor, and in the Greek Bible translation, the Septuagint or LXX, it is loutera. Besides, whenever mentioned in the Pentateuch it reads "the kiyyor and its pedestal," in the LXX loutera kai basis, the laver and its base; in the Mishnah, however, pedestal or base is never mentioned.

Because of the Biblical ordinance regarding the usage of the water-basin, the translation louteron or laver for the Hebrew kiyyor is not correct. The louteron and the laver were vessels in which people washed and bathed, but this was not true for the kiyyor. The kiyyor contained water to be drawn from it for the purpose of washing and sanctification. Accordingly, no washing or purification took place within the kiyyor. Instead, the water was tapped from it and it flowed over the ministrant's hands and feet. In an authoritative commentary to the Mishnah the procedure is described as follows:

He is not standing and not sitting but he is stooping and he places the right hand over the right foot and the left hand over the left foot. He is not permitted to sanctify inside the kiyyor itself but only to use the water drawn from it as it says in Ex. xxx 19 'And Aaron and his sons shall wash from it,' not within it. Any water is usable for sanctification and it must not be running spring water.

From this description we see that the kiyyor was a basin containing a water supply for ritual in the Sanctuary. The basin was perpetually holy and ritually pure; it hallowed any water of any origin that was filled into it. From what we know of its characteristics and mode of use, we can form an idea of its shape: it was a fairly large basin, set on a metal pedestal, with taps from which the water was drawn. The taps were set at a convenient height so that the ministrants could stoop and let the water spill over hands and feet. The Mishnah contains many references to the functions of the kiyyor in the Temple service. The subject should be studied in all its details because only through such study will its importance be fully grasped. Here we restrict ourselves to the points that have a bearing on our problem of identification of the vessel on the

We shall now turn to the Greek counterpart of our object on the shekel, in view of its close resemblance to the basin on the coin of Pergamum, as Romanoff has recognized. Since the two depictions show objects of similar shape, these objects should presumably also have served similar purposes. Information on the Greek type, indeed, is more abundant than that on the Jewish coin, but until lately the material was dispersed in archaeological reports and art books. Owing to a comprehensive study by D.A. Amyx in Hesperia, XXVII, 1958, pp. 221-228, we can form a fairly complete idea of the Greek laver.

The correct name in Greek for the familiar 'basin-on-a-pedestal' is assumed to be louterion kai hypostaton. Such implements appear frequently on red-figured vase paintings of the fifth and fourth centuries B.C. For louteria found in Temple areas, the name perirrhanterion or 'lustral basin' is suggested and the basins shown in vase paintings beside a deity or near the entrance of a temple might have some claim to this designation; however, the shape of all basins being generally so much alike, any distinction between those for sacred and those for profane use has so far not been possible.

In most of the Greek sources which mention louteria, separateness of basin and pedestal is either stated or implied. In any case, two piece construction was the rule. As for the material the louteria were made of, there seems to have been quite a variety. Stone seems to be the material of those usually seen on the red-figured vases. However, louteria made of terra-cotta have also been found, and samples are also known to have existed in bronze, and in combinations of different materials. The question of the material is a most important point for the identification of our object on the shekel. Since greater masses of stone or terra-cotta were required, in particular for the pedestal, than of metal, the shape of the louteria depended in part upon the material. Of course, the general type remained the same; a basin supported by a columnar pedestal with a spreading foot, sometimes mounted on a rectangular plinth, the shaft thick or thin, the foot narrow or spreading, in many degrees and combinations. Ornamentation may be lavish, sparse, or altogether lacking.

We have seen that it is just the columnar pedestal which differs so basically according to the material used. We know from the Bible (Ex.xxx 18) that the laver prescribed for the Sanctuary was of bronze. We can safely assume that in the second century B.C. the laver in the Temple was also of metal. This will explain the slender form of support carrying the basin on the shekel, because in metal a thin post is sufficiently strong for the purpose.

In vase painting usually various types of persons are present beside the louterion, often merely standing by, sometimes in the act of washing. From these depictions we can study the difference between the Greek vessel and the kiyyor. But we wish to go further into the question to what extent, or whether at all, the Greek louterion corresponds to the Hebrew kiyyor and in which way the corresponding terms in the two languages were used.

In the Bible, kiyyor has a threefold meaning, as James L. Kelso pointed out in a study of the vocabulary of all vessels in the Bible, ceramic as well as metallic (BASOR Suppl. Studies nos. 5-6, 1948). In ceramic ware, the term means a bowl; in metal ware it can mean two things, (1) a laver, (2) a cooking pot.

Since the vessel in Jewish use was so similar to the Greek laver in its external shape, we should like to compare the Greek equivalent to the Jewish kiyyor in the LXX. We are mainly concerned with the cases where the word means 'laver.'

Exodus xxx 18 contains the most important passage for our questions. Moses was told to make a louteria chalkoun, kai basin auten chalken — here, again, we see that the implement was composed of two separate parts, just as the Greek one. In II Chron. iv 14 we find in the description of King Solomon's Temple louteras having been made for the Sanctuary. In II Chron. vi 13 the kiyyor serves as a rostrum for King Solomon to stand and kneel on and accordingly it is not translated louteron, but instead basis. This shows the way of thinking of the translators. They could not well imagine that Solomon stood and knelt on a laver or a pot — all the more since the measurements are given as 5x5x3 cubits — therefore they referred their translation to the secondary part of the laver assemblage, the pedestal. Thus they provided the translation with a comprehensive commentary on the difficult passage. In the Greek translation of the kiyyor in the sense of a bowl or pot, I Samuel ii 14 (in LXX I Kings ii 14) the corresponding word is likewise used.

From the above we should conclude that it was the translators aim to avoid anything that might be incomprehensible to the Greeks. This leads us to the question why kiyyor, or water-basin, in the Hebrew Bible was translated in the LXX louteron, or laver. According to the full passage in Ex. xxx 18 Moses was commanded to 'make a brazen basin, and a brazen base for it, for washing; and thou shalt put it between the tabernacle of witness and the altar, and thou shalt put forth water into it. And Aaron and his sons shall wash their hands and their feet with water from it.' We see that it is said "water from it" and "wash therein." There, a louterion is not identical with the kiyyor in the Bible, because it does not denote the true function of the implement which was restricted to holding the hallowed water. Washing inside was not expressly forbidden in the Bible passage, but implicitly the ordinance to use water from it contains the prohibition to use it as a washing basin. The ritual of hallowing hands and feet was in no way connected with cleanness or uncleanness of the priests. When a priest approached the kiyyor he had to be ritually clean; this was the precondition for the hallowing. Since the kiyyor was holy — Moses had anointed and consecrated it for this purpose (Lev. viii 11) — the water was, so to speak, the medium to transfer holiness from it to the hands and feet of the priests before they touched the holy Altar with the hands, and the holy ground on which it stood, with the feet.*

It seems, then, that the translators were induced to their rendering because they were eager to give an idea of the shape of the kiyyor as they knew it either from sight or from description. They resorted to the louterion because in its form it was the nearest thing to the kiyyor in the Temple. In this assumption we are strengthened by the fact that the depiction on the shekel is so similar to the Greco-Roman representations.

The representation on the shekel — the holy vessel containing the sanctifying water — is, to all appearances meant to demonstrate and emphasize the holiness of Jerusalem and Israel. The holy water-basin that stood close to the Temple can actually be identified with the Temple. The Temple itself in that period could not be shown on coins because such representations were not the fashion in the Hellenistic kingdoms, particularly in the East; it was a habit of the Romans who in the later Republic began to depict temple facades, triumphal arches and other buildings on their coins. Therefore, when the designer had to choose an object that symbolized the Temple evidently found nothing more appropriate than the holy water-basin. The inscription "Shekel of Israel" around the vessel should be taken as an allusion to the Bible in which, in Exodus, the story is told of how the "Temple in the Desert" was built. All the material required was provided by the people of Israel and the quantities of the metals used for the construction are minutely reported in "hallowed shekels." The picture on the obverse of the shekel, translated into plain language, says that the Holy Temple and all its furnishings were constructed by the effort of all of Holy Israel.

*The priests officiated barefoot and with bare hands.

Stater of Side in Pamphylia

Enlarged details from above

Concerning the triple plant on the reverse of the shekel — there is nothing on any other coin, Jewish or non-Jewish, that could be compared with this design. In antiquity flowers were usually depicted with three calyx-leaves or three petals and it was therefore assumed that the three projections on each of the three parts of our design are only a deviation from the common practice of depicting flowers, usually believed to be lilies. Another school, however, holds the opinion that pomegranates are represented on the shekel and, because pomegranates are shown on coins quite differently and always in their natural shape, it is held by this school that on the shekel the fruit is in the stage of transition from blossom to fruit.

In order to prove the meaning of such an extraordinary representation, the partisans of the pomegranate hypothesis point to the importance given this fruit in the Bible. Decorations within the Temple building, of the candelabrum there, and of the sacred garments of the high priest are prescribed to have consisted in part of imitated pomegranates. This, however, applies to the ripe fruit as a fertility symbol and not to the stage of transition where a fruit cannot yet be perceived. To meet this contradiction, it is set forth by the same school that the design on the shekel was not intended to depict plants of the land, and that therefore the triple plant must have been considered a symbol of greatest spiritual value.

P. Romanoff holds that "the form of the pomegranate as it appears on the shekels and half-shekels is usually in its budding stage, with a blossom (crown) on it. On the other coins it appears in the stage of ripeness, round, with the pitma or top piece. Only on the coins of Herod I is the pomegranate large." What is seen on the shekel, but not described in detail by Romanoff, consists of two lines curving laterally and ending in tiny balls, and a heavier line in the middle ending, like a spike, in a sharp point. All three lines rise from an ellipse projecting in relief. The sharp-pointed, needle-like spike, rising straight upward, is a rather unusual feature for a pomegranate in any stage of development. Romanoff refers to passages in Canticles where feelings of love are attached to the budding pomegranate. We should doubt that such sentiments are aroused by a fruit with such needle-like spikes which by their very nature certainly do not evoke feelings of tenderness and love.

On Jewish ossuaries we find examples which illustrate the fundamental difference between the representation of a flower and the triple plant design on the shekel. One depiction of a flower shows three calyx-leaves; the middle leaf in frontal view looks almost like our spike and the two stamens carry at their tips two little balls, the antlers, that resemble the little balls on the shekel; but the two leaves in side view betray the true character of the third middle leaf as a calyx-leaf (Good enough, Jewish Symbols, Vol. III, plate 184).

On the strength of these facts it appears that the sharp-pointed spike in the middle is a thorn and that the plant that is represented on the shekel is one that belongs to the family of thorny plants. There is probably no country on earth of the same size which has so many plants with prickles and thorns as the Holy Land. There are no less than 50 genera and 200 species of plants in Syria and Palestine furnished with thorns and prickles, besides a multitude with prickly fruits. Since it is nowhere mentioned that pomegranates are counted among these kinds of plants, we may safely exclude the possibility that pomegranates are represented on the shekel.

This being the case, we must attempt to identify the plant from among those that have thorns or prickles. The first choice is, of course, the seneh, the thorn-bush from which the angel of God manifested himself to Moses on Horeb (Ex. iii 2,4). Deut. xxxiii 16 describes God as "that dwelt in the seneh." In rabbinic literature the seneh is interpreted as symbolic of Israel. The depiction of the plant falls in line with the inscription around it on the shekel: "Jerusalem the Holy." This is self-evident and needs no further comment if we think of the Bible passage (Ex. iii 5), where Moses heard the voice from the thornbush saying, "The place whereupon thou standest is holy ground."

The question is, of course, whether the design on the shekel is a realistic representation of the plant as it actually appears in nature. The etymology of the word sheds no light on the kind of bush that is mentioned in the Bible. In the LXX, the translation batos gives the opinion of the scholars at the time of translation in favour of the bramble (rubus, blackberry). We must note that this assumed knowledge of the nature of the plant was probably influenced by an analogy with other Bible passages dealing with a burning bramble bush. As for the designer of the shekel, we should believe that he was guided by the definition derived from the LXX and so he concentrated his effort on the main characteristics of the bramble, the thorns and berries. Of course, we have to consider a certain stylization in the pictorial rendition of the plant the artist had in mind. In this respect he was most probably inspired by a prototype which he adapted for his purpose. Fortunately, we were able to find the working model that assisted our artist in his design.

Investigating the matter from this angle we gave particular attention to a personality that heretofore has been thought of as only marginally associated with our problem — king Antiochus VII Sidetes. In fact, however, it was Sidetes who set in motion the events which gave birth to the problem. Sidetes, or Sideian, was the king's popular agnomen for the reason of his close association with Side in Pamphylia, an autonomous Greek city in Asia Minor.* E.R. Bevan put it as follows:

Antiochus, the younger surviving son of Demetrius I, had grown up in the Pamphylian city of Side. Its people were among the boldest seafarers of that coast; their naval contingent had formed a principal element in the fleet of Antiochus the Great King. And that the seafaring tradition was maintained is shown by the fact that in the last century B.C. the people of Side were prominent among the pirates, and Side was a great pirate stronghold and mart. It was in close touch with the people behind, who, as we have seen, were ready to join any adventure which promised fighting and loot. Such an environment might not be an ideal one for the education of a prince, but it was incomparably better than a Syrian palace, and wild seafaring men were better comrades than eunuchs and panders. The young prince, now about twenty, was in Rhodes when the news that his brother was a captive in Iran reached him. He at once made ready to step into the breach and rescue the heritage of his house from strangers. The mercenaries were got together and a fleet prepared, no doubt, in the docks of Side.

He sent letters to the various communities of Syria announcing his purpose, and summoning them to give him their allegiance. (The House of Seleucus, Vol. II, pp.237 f.)

It should be noted that Antiochus at the time when he sent his message to Simon Maccabaeus was not yet king of Syria despite introducing himself in the letter as such. Therefore, in all his doings he had to rely on his resources at Side. His actions during their early stage should be explored for possible traces of Sideian influence.

With this in mind we examined Side's considerable numismatic output and then we chanced upon the fact that during all Side's long existence the pomegranate was its heraldic emblem. According to language experts the word side in the local idiom means "pomegranate." Thus, the name of the fruit being identical with the name of the city, its choice as the city symbol needs no further justification. But it is also the selfsame fruit which Romanoff believed to be represented on the shekel. This surprising coincidence called for a closer examination and search for possible similarities in representation. The following was found:

- (1) The closest similarity with the depiction on the shekel is found on the Sideian staters minted in the fourth century B.C. and during a lengthy period afterwards.
- (2) The conformity of shapes is not in the fruit as a whole but only in its upper part, the blossom or crown.
- (3) The blossom of the Sideian pomegranate is identical with the depiction on the shekel save for the changes necessary on account of the adaptation to the imaginary concept of the prickly, fruit bearing shrub.
- (4) The triple tree branch as the basis for the overall design is likewise found on staters in the same series.

The details discussed above can be minutely examined on the adjoining plate. We believe to have shown that the shekel is not a mere footnote to a literary source. Obviously, the design from its conception to its execution was the work of artists from Side. We may even assume that Antiochus sent a team of Sideian experts along with his litter to carry out a scheme which he cleverly devised as a proposal. Thus, while the coin tells a story all its own, it is its inherent ambiguity which misled experts to date the shekel into the First Revolt. Now, the insight we obtained provides the sorely missed foundation for the true dating.

Furthermore, we can see in which respect Hill failed and why he has been able to change his dating of the shekel from one period to another 200 years younger. Eliminating the shekel from the list of "historical Greek coins," he disregarded the cultural rapprochement between Hebrew and Greek traditions of which the shekel is a significant example. This fact, too, speaks in favor of the Maccabeo-Hasmonaeen period, and against the First Revolt, as the correct date.

The opportunity to set the record straight is most welcome because it provides fresh hope for a satisfactory solution of the "crux of Jewish numismatics."

CENTURY OLD NOTES

The rarest Chinese autographs are those of Wan-hi-sche, a distinguished jurist who flourished toward the end of the third century of our era. These are so peculiar that an expert can decide on their genuineness at a glance. It is related that Wan-hi-sche was so sparing in giving his autograph that it could only be obtained from him by strategy; and it was, therefore, usual to invite him to a dinner of roast goose, of which he was very fond, in order to obtain his coveted signature to a letter of acceptance. At present, the documents written by him are sold for upwards of a thousand dollars. — Mason's Coin Collectors' Magazine, 1872.

PRESIDENT'S DESK

John Jay Pittman
President

In the past, after the summer lull, September was looked upon as the beginning of the more active season for coin collectors. This is still true, although to a lesser extent, because many important coin shows and auctions now are being held during the summer months. This September, the 1972 boom in numismatic activities continues, stimulated in part by the interest in the 1972 Philadelphia mint error "double die" cent and the soaring world price of gold.

During the summer, the more serious side of numismatics has also boomed. Over 100 collectors and dealers participated in the ANA's 4th annual seminar, held in Colorado Springs July 9-15th at Colorado College. Classes in three areas of counterfeits, grading and ancient coins were well attended and very worthwhile. It was my pleasure, as President of the ANA, to attend most of the seminar sessions and I highly recommend that you consider taking part in next year's ANA Summer Seminar.

During July, I also attended the North East Ohio Coin Club Show in Cleveland, the Metropolitan Washington D. C. Numismatic Association Show, and the Convention of the Alabama Numismatic Society in Birmingham. These numismatic events were well attended and the bourse and exhibit areas were well organized and active. At none of these shows was the numismatic "summer slump" in evidence.

Your support is still needed to get legislation passed which will help stamp out the evils of counterfeits and restrikes that continue to plague our hobby. In order to get H.R. 10-600 (the Hobby Protection Act) passed, it will be necessary for each and every one of us to write or phone our congressman to ask him to support H.R. 10-600. One of the provisions of the bill requires that a word such as "COPY" as well as the date of manufacture of the copy, be incused on all reproductions, copies, facsimiles or replicas. Let's help clean up our hobby. Contact your Congressman today.

As individual members of the ANA, the largest numismatic association in the world (now over 27,000 members!), we should also make our wishes known to our congressmen with regard to the striking of a coin or series of coins, or the issue of paper money with a special design commemorating the 1976 Bicentennial of American Independence. Show your interest both in numismatics and in the history of our country. Write or phone you congressman and ask him to support legislation for a Bicentennial issue of coins and/or paper money.

September, the first month of fall, reminds us of our responsibilities to our numismatic clubs and area numismatic organizations. Club meetings and larger gatherings have much to offer in the way of shared knowledge and the achieving of worthwhile programs, but they need the special help of each individual member. Let your officers know that you wish to be an active member this year!

COLLECTIONS: ANS, ARS.

NOTES: Obv. die - Taken from the same hub as the Bucklen card (No. 4) and the McLain Bros. card (No. 19).

Rev. die - ALI of MEDALISTS recut.

Only two specimens of this card have been observed to date, one in the cabinet of the American Numismatic Society in New York City and the other in possession of author Slabaugh. The Hanson card would have special attraction to collectors interested in the medals and tokens of die sinkers and medalists, as well as to those working on Chicago items, Deweyana, etc. The current rarity of this card suggests that the original issue may have been quite small, perhaps as few as 100 pieces. Consensus is that they were given to prospective customers to solicit business. The possibility exists that the advertising side may have been coupled with other obverses, considering other historical events at the turn of the century. One might also conjecture that so fine an example of medallistic art may have been struck in other metals, particularly brass.

REFERENCES: STORER NO. 44; DUFFIELD NO. 65; ADAMS MD NO. 77; MILLER.

VARIETIES: (a) Obv. and Rev. as previously described.

(b) Obv. as previously described. Rev. shows only a faint trace of a period after OLYMPIA, and no dot (for porthole) near prow of ship near water line due to a filled in die. A specimen in the A.N.S. cabinet shows only the dot after OLYMPIA. Many specimens have weakly struck letters on obverse and/or reverse.

NOTES: Rev. die - Taken from the same hub as the Leader card (No. 17), and Alexander Shoes (No. 1).

Duffield, in his article on Baltimore Store Cards, wrote as follows: "The department store of S. Kann, Sons & Co. was established by Solomon Kann in 1859 at 156 (509-513) South Broadway, where it has since been located. In 1905 the business was sold to other parties. The Kanns also conduct a department store in Washington, D.C."

Mr. Duffield believed that the Kann's card was issued for the Baltimore store, but he subsequently learned that the Kann store in Baltimore was never located on a "corner." Consequently, he finally attributed this card as a Washington, D.C. piece. The plural word "STORES" on the reverse of the card indicates that the advertisement was intended to represent more than one establishment, so that the Baltimore branch must have been included. The card should therefore be identified with both cities. In his original article, Duffield stated that the piece was made of brass. Adams in preparing his book copied Duffield in identifying the card as brass. Miller followed Adams listing and called the piece brass. It is believed that neither Adams nor Miller ever saw a specimen, because it is definitely gilded copper.

16. KIRKMAN & SON, INC., BROOKLYN, N.Y.

NOTES: The Kirkman card is by far the most common of all the Dewey series. The Kirkman Company claims that there were 100,000 pieces struck over a period long enough to distribute such a quantity through their sales people. As might be expected where so many dies are employed, there are major variations in weight between different pieces. Obverse die varieties can be checked roughly by the distinguishing features: (1) Line of Dewey's armpit points to a specific part of the W. & H. CO. NEWARK, N.J. name under the bust, and (2) the position of G of GEORGE below the same. A more precise method of determining the die variety is by reference to TABLES II AND III in the paper.

Because of the large number of dies used, many die breaks will be found on both obverse and reverse sides of this card. These are not mentioned in the catalogue as the list would be unending.

All of the Kirkman cards were issued holed. Occasionally, one will be found with a ribbon or bar pin top having been added by someone other than the manufacturer for the purpose of wearing on the person. One such item seen by the authors is a bar pin in the form of a spread eagle clutching a sword in its talons and resting on crossed cannons above a stack of cannon balls. This pin, of pressed tin, gilded, is a conventional type and contemporary to the period of the card, but it is evidently an added item. Another such piece shows the token suspended from a red, white, and blue ribbon hung from a gilded ornamental bar pin marked: SOUVENIR.

Author Slabaugh has two specimens of the Kirman card with narrow red, white, and blue ribbon inserted through the hole in the token; Author Dewey has a similar specimen. Although the ribbons are contemporary, they were not placed by the manufacturer. The likelihood is that they were added by some enterprising street vendor or energetic salesman to enhance the appearance of the tokens and make it possible to pin them on the person.

Certain obverse die varieties of this generally common card seem to be quite scarce. That there may be other varieties as yet unobserved is a good possibility. For this reason, the present listing may not be complete.

17. THE LEADER, SCRANTON, PA.

OBV. Profile bust of Dewey to right in center. Below, in minute letters: W. & H. CO. NEWARK, N.J. Legend at bottom along border: ADMIRAL GEORGE DEWEY.

REV. Ship (the Olympia) steaming to right in center. Legend at top along border: COMPLIMENTS OF THE LEADER., and at bottom along border: .SCRANTON. 1899.

METAL: Variety (a) Gilded copper. SIZE: 32.0 mm. T.A.E. 2.3 mm. WEIGHT: 170 grains. BORDER: 5. EDGE: 1. ISSUED: 1899. RARITY: 8.

Variety (b). Silver plated on copper. SIZE: 32.0 mm. T.A.E. 2.3 mm. WEIGHT: 170 grains. BORDER: 5. EDGE: 1. ISSUED: 1899. RARITY: 9.

MADE BY: Whitehead & Hoag, Newark, N.J.

COLLECTIONS: Var. (a) GTC, WSD, GJF, ARS.

Var. (b) WSD

VARIETIES: (a) Gilden copper. Some specimens show a die break on the reverse from the bottom of the last N in SCRANTON to the date.

(b) Silver plated. Periods at either side of SCRANTON are missing due to filled in die. Plating appears to have been done originally over the gilded copper piece, either to determine appearance in such a state, or to distribute to selected people.

NOTES: Obv. die - Wart on tip of nose, die break back of head, and "spiked" chin. This die was used for seven other Dewey cards.

Rev. die - Taken from the same hub as the Kann card (No. 15), and the Alexander Shoe card (No. 1).

MADE BY: C.H. Hanson, Chicago, Illinois.

COLLECTIONS: GJF, ARS.

NOTES: Obv. die - Same as Bucklen card (No. 4), and taken from the same hub as the Hanson card (No. 11). The same die was used to strike the obverse of a GAR badge for the 32nd National Encampment.

Albert O. McLain and Charles R. McLain were members of the Committee on Badges for the Washington, D.C. Welcome Home Celebration to Admiral Dewey in October 1899. It is believed that they were principals in the firm of McLain Bros. & Co. that issued this advertising card. They were responsible for the fabrication of a Souvenir Reception Committee Badge, the obverse die for which was taken from the same hub as this card. However, they were not manufacturing medallists, but travel agents with offices, no doubt, in both Chicago and Washington. As members of the Badge Committee, they were partly responsible for the beautiful bronze official Welcome Home Medal struck by J.K. Davison of Philadelphia.

The battle axe Symbol and Motto "ALTERA MERCES" on the reverse of this card seem to be associated with the McLain Company rather than the excursion. They appear on the Souvenir Committee Badge previously mentioned, and on other medals and tokens issued by the McLain Brothers. Interestingly enough, the motto translates as "another reward" or "another gain." Could this be interpreted as turn of the century self praise, similar to our modern-day advertising like "another Ford?"

The ediface on the reverse of this advertising card appears to be a replica of the Agricultural Building at the Omaha Exposition.

METAL: Aluminum. SIZE: 30.7 mm. T.A.E. 1.8 mm. WEIGHT: 33 grains. BORDER:

METAL: Gilded Copper. SIZE: 28.8 mm. T.A.E. 2.0 mm. WEIGHT: 130 grains. BORDER: 5. EDGE: 1 ISSUED: 1899. RARITY: 9.

MADE BY: Whitehead & Hoag, Newark, N.J.

COLLECTIONS: ANS, ARC.

NOTES: Not listed in any published works. Only two specimens observed are in the American Numismatic Society cabinet in New York City, and in the Arlie Salbaugh cabinet.

Admiral Dewey visited Detroit and Grand Rapids in June, 1900, so this card may have been issued earlier in expectation of his visit.

The Bay City directory for 1899 lists the officers of the National Protective Society as:

David E. Thomas - President.

Franklin Smith Dewey - Secretary.*

Dana B. Richardson - Attorney.

The Society's office was located in the library building, corner of 6th and Adams, downtown. All the officers gave their address as that of the society. The business of the society was insurance, and stock was sold to the public.

*Franklin Dewey was a third cousin to Admiral Dewey which probably accounts for the issuance of this card by the National Protective Society. He was superintendent of public schools at Saginaw and Alpena, Michigan. He was a merchant for 10 years, and secretary of the Protective Society in 1898 and 1899. He was born in February 1851 at Cambridge, Michigan, and married Isabella Thomas, daughter of David Thomas (President of the National Protective Society) in 1869. He was educated at Adrian College and the University of Michigan.

Obv. die - W of DEWEY recut. Same as Hopkins Co. (No. 12), Model Clothing (No. 21), and Peck Bros. (No. 24).

23. OMAHA (GREATER AMERICA) EXPOSITION, NEBRASKA.

OBV. Bust of Dewey facing, head to right in center. Legend at top along border: HERO OF MANILA, and at bottom: ADMIRAL GEO. DEWEY.

REV. U.S. Government Exposition Building in center resting on crossed American flags and set between and in back of two hemispheres, radial rays emanating from the dome. Legend at top along border: GREATER AMERICA, and at bottom: OMAHA 1899. Superimposed on rays above building the word: EXPOSITION.

METAL: Bronze. SIZE: 18.6 mm. T.A.E. 1.3 mm. WEIGHT: 35 grains. BORDER: 2. EDGE: 1. ISSUED: 1899. RARITY: 9.

COLLECTION: WSD.

NOTES: An unusually scarce card, possibly due to its generally insignificant appearance. The hub from which the obverse die was taken was employed for several other Dewey tokens. The Greater America Exposition was an outgrowth of the TransMississippi and International Exposition that was held at Omaha from June 1 to October 31, 1898. The Annual Encyclopedia for 1898 gives this view of its conception:

"In view of the extension of the domain of the United States, which has created an irresistible popular demand for information concerning the people and resources of Cuba, Puerto Rico, Hawaii, and the Philippine Islands, and as the grounds and buildings devoted to the recent TransMississippi Exposition are eminently adapted for an exposition illustrative of the manners, habits, and industrial capacity of the people of those countries, the citizens of Nebraska earnestly favor the proposed Greater America Exposition at Omaha in 1899, and respectfully urge our representatives in Congress to procure the necessary legislation for the recognition and participation of the United States Government and such national aid as may be deemed essential to its success."

As it turned out, the Exposition was a financial failure. The site of the Exposition was on the north side of Omaha, within the city limits. At the extreme west end of the grounds, in the place of honor at the head of a lagoon, stood the Government Building for which the United States had appropriated $200,000. This is the edifice depicted on the card. The building was surmounted by a colossal dome which towered above all other buildings in the exposition. The dome was capped by a figure representing Liberty Enlightening the World, accounting for the rays evidenced on the reverse of the card. A silver medal was issued to commemorate the Exposition. (The Numismatist for July 1898, page 188, provides details of that medal.)

 MADE BY: Manufacturer unknown. (Possibly Moise-Klinker Co. of San Francisco, California.)
 COLLECTION: JRN.

NOTES: This piece is possibly unique as only one specimen has been unearthed in 40 years. It is unusual in that it is one of the very few cards that bear both a San Francisco and Los Angeles address.
 There is no apostrophe before 98 on the obverse. There are several periods and commas omitted from the details on the reverse.

VARIETIES: (a) Obv.: A of ADMIRAL is in line with epaulet. Die breaks across lower left corner of epaulet braid on some specimens. A brass plated specimen is in the WSD collection, but the plating was probably done privately. Die chips at back of head, chin, nose and forehead. This obverse die was employed for seven other Dewey cards.

Rev.: Recut E of FRED and F of FEARNOT. Bottom E's and left stand of N in FEARNOT deficient. Width of legend: 19.5 mm. V of coat lapels points to right of E in FEARNOT.

Rev.: All but last three letters of FRED FEARNOT recut. Width of legend: 18.5 mm. V of coat lapel points to right side of F in FEARNOT.

NOTES: All five reverse dies were taken from the same hub of Fearnot. According to advertising in the "Work and Win" novels of 1899, there were 50,000 of these cards struck, all presumably issued with bar pin tops.

Frank Tousey's address in 1899 was 24 Union Square in New York City. In 1898, his publishing address was: 29 West 26th Street in the same city. He published: Work and Win, a weekly. Subscription price $2.50 per year. He also published Pluck and Luck, Three Chums, Secret Service, and Snaps. In February 1900, it was announced that there were still a few Dewey-Fearnot badges left, and that a new one was bearing Fearnot on one side and Evelyn Baylor, the heroine of the series on the other. Author Slabaugh has one of the latter pieces. These were available to Work and Win Club members at 10 cents each.

It is interesting to note that among the many authors of dime novels was a Frederick Dey who wrote a number of the "Nick Carters" under the pen name of Frederick Dewey.

 MADE BY: Probably Koch & Co., New York. N.Y.
 COLLECTION: WSD.

NOTES: The only specimen of this card known to the authors was one obtained from the late Gilbert Perez of the Philippines. Mr. Perez found it among other numismatic items dug out of the ruins of his home at Manila after the United States had recaptured the city in World War II, and Perez had been freed from the Santo Tomas prison camp. There is a possibility that it relates to a business in the Philippines. However, the obverse die matches the Barrister Cigar card (No. 3b) which strongly suggests that it pertains to a store in the states. More probably, this card relates to a series of four different color stamps issued at Camp Dewey, New London, Connecticut by or for the U.S. Junior Naval Reserve of New York. Each of the stamps bears a portrait of the Admiral and a picture of his Flagship, the Olympia. The value in each color is given as 10c.

Dewey's collar open at front; Shafter's collar high on left; Sampson's collar high on right. Some specimens show a die break on border at E of MAINE.

(b) Obv. M of MILES about 1 mm from cloverleaf outline at left. E of AVENGERS, all of OF THE, M and I of MAINE are recut. No period after O for Ohio. Dewey's collar closed in front; Shafter's is even on both sides; as is Sampson's.

(c) Obv. Same as (a) except card struck in brass.

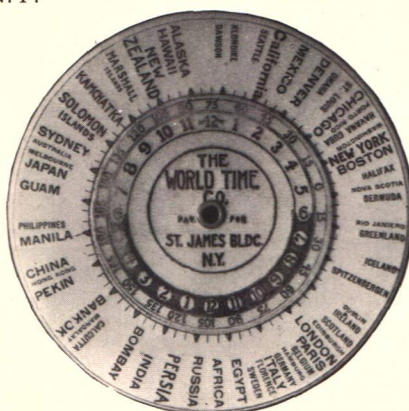

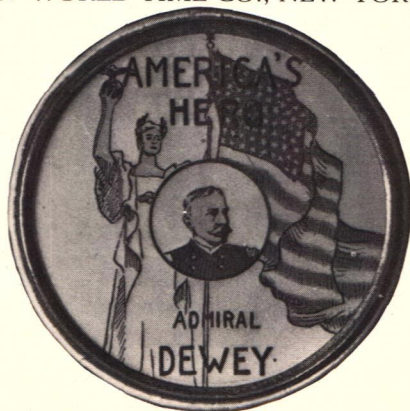

Rev. die - Several letters of legends recut.

NOTES: Mr. William J. Schultz, Numismatist of Cincinnati, Ohio, provided the following information on this card in 1938: WM. VETTER, Cafe, 116 East Pearl Street, Cincinnati, Ohio. Phone, CHerry 8617.

"Mr. Vetter is still alive and he states that he had the Dewey Medal, Avengers of the Maine, with the portraits of Dewey, Miles, Sampson, and Shafter, Rev. Battleship "Maine," made by James Murdock, Jr. in aluminum and brass plated. He gave them out in 1898 to his saloon customers.

James Murdock, Jr., is deceased, and the firm has been out of business almost 10 years. In speaking to his son, he remembered the Dewey medal made for William Vetter, and declares that all old dies were sold for junk at auction." A Schultz price list of August 1, 1937, describes variety (c) as brass, gold plated.

OBV. Bust of Dewey facing within a circle, head to right in center. At left, Miss Liberty in flowing robe, holding aloft in her right hand a globe surmounted by an eagle, and in her left hand a flag staff partly obscured by the center circular panel. At right, an American Flag flying in the breeze, supported from the staff. In two straight lines across the center top and superimposed in part on the starry portion of the flag: AMERICA'S / HERO. At bottom center in two straight lines: ADMIRAL / DEWEY. The field is white, the Admiral's coat blue, the flag in appropriate colors, and the lettering black.

MEDALS AND TOKENS RELATED TO THE ADMIRAL DEWEY ADVERTISING CARDS

Omitted from the Catalogue listing of Dewey Advertising pieces are a great many medallic items bearing hub and die relationship to the Dewey cards. A few such pieces are described here to illustrate the possible scope of that material. No attempt has been made to make this listing complete.

1. Obverse: Ferris Wheel in inner circle. In outer band: Above: FERRIS WHEEL; Below: GREATEST MECHANICAL ACHIEVEMENT OF THE AGE.
Reverse: Admiral Dewey in uniform facing. Inscription: ADMIRAL DEWEY.
Metal: Copper, silvered. Size: 37 mm.
Edge: Reeded.

The above information was taken verbatim from Nathan N. Eglit's article on "Medals and Tokens of Columbus and the Columbian Exposition" published in the August 1964 "Numismatic Scrapbook" (Page 2356). As Dewey did not become a public figure until 1898, Mr. Eglit was asked why he included the piece in a listing of items issued in 1892-3. His reasoning was simply "because the Ferris Wheel was a very important attraction at the Fair."

The Dewey portrait on this medal may have been taken from Obverse Hub No. 3 in the Store Card listing. However, no specimen has been made available for study. The piece cannot be considered a true advertising card, even though it was unquestionably struck to promote the Ferris Wheel as entertainment.

2. Obverse: Same as the Barrister card (No. 3b) and the card of an Unknown Advertiser (No. 31) since all three pieces were struck from the same die.

Reverse: In center, a four leaf clover within an inscription: LUCKY POCKET PIECE; both within a horseshoe. Legend at sides and top along border: "GRIDLEY, YOU MAY FIRE WHEN READY." In exergue: MANILA. At bottom along border: MAY 1, 1898. Metal: Aluminum. Size: 30.5 mm. T.A.E. 1.3 and 1.7 mm. Weight: 24 grains and 31 grains. (This token, like the merchant's cards (No. 3b and probably No. 31) was issued in two different thicknesses and weights.)

Border: 5. Edge: 1. Issued: 1899

Made by: Probably Koch & Co., N.Y.

3. Obverse: Bust of Evelyn (the heroine of the dime novel) Work and Win in center. Legend at bottom along border: EVELYN.

Reverse: Same description and hub as the Merchant's card (No. 28), but a distinct new die. Letters O and T of FEARNOT are recut, as well as the period following. V of coat lapels points to upper right tip of E in FEARNOT. Width of legend: 20 mm.

Metal: Gilded copper. Size: 32.0 mm. T.A.E. 2.1 mm.

Weight: grains. Border: 2. Edge: 1. Issued: 1900.

Made by: Whitehead & Hoag, Newark, N.J.

Reference: Advertisement facing back cover of the January 19, 1900 issue of Work and Win shows this token suspended from a bar pin and chains, as were the Tousey cards (No. 28) when issued. The Fearnot-Evelyn token was sold for 10 cents with a club membership!

4. Camp Dewey Stamps

These stamps were issued in four colors but only one denomination of 10 c(ents?). The colors are green, brown, aqua, and blue. All efforts to identify these stamps beyond what is indicated on their face have proven unfruitful. They were evidently distributed by or for Camp Dewey, New London, Connecticut, and bear

It is conjectured that these stamps may be the ones mentioned on the reverse of card No. 31 (Unknown Advertiser). The inscription on the token, for example, offering a dollar's worth of Dewey stamps for as little as a 50 cent purchase in the store, suggests that the stamps would be redeemable elsewhere, possibly at a camp canteen.

Any reader having knowledge of either the card or the stamps would do a favor by imparting such information to one of the authors of this paper.

5. Obverse: Emblem of Trans-Mississippi and International Exposition, consisting of a seated female holding a Caduceus in her left hand with right hand pointing toward border. Above her head: OMAHA, in a curved line. Background shows an open wire line, farm, railroad engine on track, a ferry boat, and factory, from left to right. Mining tools and agricultural implements in foreground with inscription: U.S.A. below. Legend at sides and top along border: TRANS-MISSISSIPPI AND INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION, and at bottom: 1898.

Reverse: Identical with McLain card (No. 19) which employed the same die.

Metal: Gilded Copper Size: 38.1 mm. T.A.E. 2.5 mm. Weight: 308 grams

Border: 2 Edge: 2 Issued: 1899.

Made by: C.H. Hanson, Chicago.

The Trans-Mississippi and International Exposition was the fourth with international flavor subsequent to the Columbian in 1893. It opened June 1, 1898, and closed October 31 of that year. It was the forerunner of and provided the setting for the Greater America (Omaha) Exposition the following year. It was governed by a board of persons appointed by the governors of 24 Trans-Mississippi states. The Congress of the United States appropriated $200,000 for the government building that is depicted on the reverse of the Omaha Exposition card (No. 23).

The site of 184 acres was on the north side of Omaha within the city limits. The area across 20th Street, extending from Sherman Avenue to 24th Street, was utilized for the main buildings.

The official commemorative medal of the exposition is listed in Hibler-Kappen as Nos. 281, 282, 283, on Page 39 of their book So-Called Dollars. The medal depicted here, however, was a special issue with a representation of the agricultural building at the exposition on its reverse.

Financially, the Trans-Mississippi Exposition was a striking success, having been visited by more than two and a half million persons. Gate receipts totalled almost a million dollars with another million coming from concessions and other sources. Stockholders recovered the full amount of their holdings, an unusual result in the history of expositions.

Soon after the close of the Exposition, the desirability of having a Greater America Exposition on the same grounds at Omaha was recommended. An organization was set up and the exposition held forth over the summer months of 1899. It suffered in attendance, and was an economic disaster, perhaps proving the old adage that "there can be too much of a good thing." The Omaha Exposition card (No. 23) remains to remind us of that otherwise notable affair.

6. Obverse: Identical with Kirkman card (No. 16n) and struck from same die.
Reverse: Olympia to right in center. Legend at top along border: WELCOME TO OUR HERO, and at bottom: OLYMPIA. Hub from which this die was taken was also used for the Alexander Shoe card (No. 1), and the Kann card (No. 15a). Metal: Gilded copper. Size: 31.9 mm. T.A.E. 2.1 mm. Weight: 156 grains. Border: 5. Edge: 1. Issued: 1899. Made by: Whitehead & Hoag, Newark, N.J.

This is a souvenir medal or pocket piece, typical of the period. It was issued in connection with the fantastic Welcome Home Celebration to Admiral Dewey September 27 - 30, 1899.

7. Obverse: Identical with Chicago Festival card (No. 6) and struck from same die.

This is a typical street badge distributed at both the New York City and the Washington, D.C. welcome home celebrations in the fall of 1899. Of particular interest is the use of the middle initial "W" in the Admiral's name on obverse. According to best authorities, the Admiral had no middle name. The medal was issued in several different metals and a variety of ways.

Reverse: Battle axe at top center within a branch of olive or laurel at left and of wheat at right with stems crossed at base. A baton, horizontal, below. In curved line to the left: ALTERA, and to the right: MERCES. (This is the same device used on other pieces associated with McLain Brothers.) Across the center and lower part of the field in five straight lines: ADMIRAL DEWEY / RECEPTION COMMITTEE / WASHINGTON / OCTOBER / MDCCCXCIX. At bottom in small letters following curve of border: McLAIN BROS. & CO. CHICAGO. Metal: High polish brass. Size: 38.0 mm. T.A.E. 3.1 mm.

Made by: C.H. Hanson, Chicago.

Except for the fact that this piece was issued specifically as a Reception Committee badge for the Washington, D.C. welcome home celebration for the Admiral, it could almost be classified as an advertising card of C.H. McLain & Company. The medal, however, comes suspended by a swivel loop at top center hung from a red, white and blue (or vari-colored) ribbon which is attached to an ornamented "SOUVENIR" bar pin.

The precise nature of this badge is uncertain, but it apparently had some sort of official status. While not mentioned in the published report of the Washington reception, the medal, without bar pin, ribbon, or swivel loop, is pictured on page 90 of that document. One theory is that the medal may have been distributed to the 500 members of the reception committee by McLain as a good-will token from the Company. Whether any were struck and sold to the general public is a matter of conjecture at this late date.

For additional details on the McLain brothers' part in the Washington reception, the reader should refer back to the notes on the McLain Brothers card (No. 19).

9. Obverse: Identical with the Omaha Exposition card (No. 23) and struck from the same die.

Reverse: Partial Lord's Prayer in center within an olive branch wreath having a bow tied at center of the crossed stems at the bottom.

Metal: Brass. Size: 18.7 mm. T.A.E. 1.4 mm. Weight: 33.0 grains. Border: 2. Edge: 1. Issued: 1899.

This little token was probably issued as a suspension from a stickpin which was a popular form of adornment at the time. A great variety of such tokens with Dewey on obverse are found attached by a loop to a small brass American Eagle surmounting the top of a stickpin. Some were fabricated to commemorate the National Peace Jubilee at Washington, D.C. in May 1899. The Lord's Prayer and olive wreath would both be appropriate symbols of peace.

10. Obverse: Same description and die as the Bucklen card (No. 4) and the McLain Bros. card (No. 19).

Reverse: In five lines across field: 32nd / NATIONAL / ENCAMPMENT / G.A.R. / SEP. 5-10. 1898. / CINCINNATI, O. all within a wreath of laurel. Ornamentation around the second and third lines; and between the fifth and sixth lines.

Metal: Gilded Copper. Size: 38.0 mm. T.A.E. 2.7 mm. Weight: 309 grains. Border: 2. Edge: 1. Issued: 1898. Made by: C.H. Hanson Co., Chicago.

This medallion piece is one of many that were issued for the 32nd and 33rd Encampments of the Grand Army of the Republic in 1898 and 1899 that bore a portrait of Admiral Dewey on obverse.

Century Old Notes

Perspiration will quickly tarnish a coin. This fact should be borne in mind by those in the habit of carrying coins about their person. Never handle fine pieces carelessly, as the slightest finger marks on the surface of a bright coin will damage it considerably. Always instruct novices to take a piece between the thumb and first two fingers, thus holding it up by the edge — protecting from moisture of the fingers the obverse and reverse surfaces of the coin, and allowing it to be turned from side to side readily without injury. —Mason's Coin Collectors' Magazine, 1872.

Convention Souvenir

James A. Conlon, director of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, has announced that in addition to providing a numismatic exhibit at the American Numismatic Association's 81st Anniversary Convention, August 15 - 19 in New Orleans, a numismatic souvenir card will be made available to the public.

This engraving is a replica of the obverse of the $2 Silver Certificate of Series 1896. It was printed from a plate, specially made for the purpose, which was prepared from the original master die created for that note. The print is the second of a set of three souvenir cards to be devoted to the 1896 notes, a series which over the last 70 years has become renowned for its thematic artistry.

The design was executed by Edwin H. Blashfield, prominent allegorical painter of the late 19th century. The artist entitled his rendition "Science Presenting Steam and Electricity to Commerce and Manufacture." Originally created for an intended $50 note, the work was used for the $2 denomination when the design proposed for that lower value was deemed unsuitable.

Copies, limited to not more than five per customer, also may be ordered by mail from the Bureau for delivery after August 19 at $1.00 each. However, customers are requested to place their orders as soon as practicable to permit the accomplishment of as much advance processing as possible. In addition, based upon the volume of orders received for previous cards, a delay of as much as six weeks may be anticipated for filling some of the requests.

Mail orders, accompanied by the proper remittance in the form of a check or money order, payable to the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, should be addressed to "ANA '72 CARD" Bureau of Engraving and Printing, Washington, D. C. 20226. It is requested that customers do not send cash with their orders.

All orders should be submitted on a standard size sheet. Purchasers should make sure that their name, address, and zip code are included on their request as well as on the transmittal envelope. (Orders that fail to comply with instructions require special handling. Consequently, those properly prepared are processed first.)

EXHIBIT CASES ALMOST FINISHED

Finishing touches are being put on our set of exhibits entitled "An Introduction To Numismatics." Most of the material is in the cases, and the lighting is being installed. The displays are housed in eight large colorful cases, and they are aimed toward non-collectors and beginners, who make up some 90 per cent of our visitors.

In the first two cases, our visitors will see how the artist designs our money, and how coins and medals are struck at the mint. Here we follow the important steps taken by the artist in his studio, from his beginning sketches right through to the final model, and then we follow the processes in the mint that lead to the striking of the finished product.

The next display shows many of the things that collectors find interesting in coins - things like die breaks, overdates, proofs, patterns, trial strikes, and many other unusual things that we find about coins. Then we see some of the ways that we can collect coins, such as by date, by type, topical collections, sets of crowns, and others.

In the fifth and largest case we show paper money, with explanations of many of the things such as control symbols, serial numbers, vignettes, and many other characteristics that make bill collecting fascinating. The final three cases show tokens, then medals, then primitive (odd and curious) monies of the world.

That completes "An Introduction to Numismatics," which is only the first of many sets of exhibits that we will be working on throughout the next few months.

We want to show our better collections, too, so we will soon design and install cases for them. There are special problems such as use of materials that will not tarnish coins, so it will take a few more weeks to design these cases. They must be attractive and versatile, yet must offer complete security for our finer pieces.

Many other exhibits are planned, including a group that shows the influence of certain artists and styles of art on coin design. Here we will trace the relationship between the two fields of numismatics and art throughout history, and I think you'll be fascinated with some of the surprises that result from such a study.

Progress is being made, and we hope that each of you will be able to come and visit us in Colorado Springs so that we can show you some of the collections that belong to you as a member of the ANA.

CENTURY OLD NOTES

The cost of a coin cabinet is a serious drawback to the collector of limited means, where beauty as well as durability should be a point well considered in its construction. A fine, well-finished cabinet adapted to a collection of two thousand pieces — coins and medals — would cost, properly made, from fifty to seventy-five dollars, according to elaboration of finish, etc. —Mason's Coin Collectors' Magazine, 1872.

THE FOURTH ANNUAL and biggest ever ANA Summer Seminar was successfully conducted July 9-15 on the campus of Colorado College. The event drew more than 100 people to Colorado Springs. The three courses offered this summer were counterfeiting, grading, and ancient coins.

The 34 students in Richard Long's grading class learned about the techniques of grading coins, including all coins.

"The approach we took was to consider the process by which coins are struck and to follow coins as they would circulate in every day use. This enabled the students to learn how to grade coins by using the actual history of the wear that the coin receives as it circulates, rather than using standard cookbook techniques," explained Long, ANA museum director and a former governor.

ANA Governor Virgil Hancock, internationally recognized authority on counterfeit, altered, and fake coins, again instructed the popular class on counterfeiting. He held the attention of the 36 numismatists in his class with his microscopes, hundreds of counterfeit specimens, and a vast knowledge of his field.

FOURTH SEMINAR BIG SUCCESS

Joel Malter, one of the top authorities and leading dealers in the field of ancient numismatics came from his home in Encino, Calif., to teach his subject. The class was conducted with the benefit of an extensive slide collection.

Plans for the Fifth Annual Summer Seminar are already well underway with 33 collectors signed up. The counterfeit class already is full and the possibility of adding another counterfeit class is being considered. A new class, photography, is nearing capacity.

Students attending the seminar in Colorado Springs find much to do outside the classroom as well as in. On Tuesday the students boarded buses and rode to Denver for lunch at the Brown Palace Hotel and the traditional director's tour through the U.S. Mint in Denver.

On Thursday a field trip to Cripple Creek, Colorado, was highlighted with tours through gold mines and other fascinating sightseeing in the historic gold camp.

One of the educational highlights on campus came Wednesday when Howard Hohnson, of the United States Mint Laboratory, Washington, D.C. lectured to the combined classes.

The total number of persons on hand for the seminar included some wives who came with their husbands to vacation and were not enrolled in any of the courses.

The 1973 Summer Seminar is scheduled for July 8-14. The cost will be approximately $119.50, which includes room and board in college facilities, two field trips, a college activity ticket, and the cost of the class.

Those interested in learning more about the 1973 seminar plans may write to the American Numismatic Association, P.O. Box 2366, Colorado Springs, Colo. 80901.

numismatic vignettes

● Where can you buy $5 million cash for $10? According to a recent AP news item, the Treasury Department is turning to grinding up worn out paper money instead of burning it (pollution) and has found one industrial firm willing to pay $10 a ton for the greenish flakes. No, Treasury will not permit it to be made into paper, although this was done at one time. The cover of the American Banker's Assn. convention program of October 1905 was made of shredded bills, some flakes being recognizable as brown-back national currency notes.

● Have you written a book recently? Working on one now? If you answer "no" to both questions, you just ain't nobody! I watch one of the TV talk shows and it seems that about every other guest has just published a book. Now, it stands to reason that many of them don't know any more about writing a book than I do, so there must be a lot of poorly written books on the market or else ghostwriting is a flourishing profession.

● At times we are overly aware of the relatively few shady and bigoted persons in numismatics, and overlook the great majority of highly ethical and truly big people in the hobby. This was brought home to me recently by a man with whom I have often had marked differences of opinion - and expressed them forcefully.

I had occasion to write a brief personal note to him, having nothing to do with our views, controversial or otherwise. Shortly thereafter he wrote one of the most delightful letters I have ever received. He did not refer to our differences except, by inference, to commend me for expressing my views, whatever they might be.

If you look upon the foregoing as self-complimentary, you have missed the point. It was his prestige that was elevated, not mine.

● Maybe it isn't good manners to relate an incident without revealing names but this one is too good to pass up. At a recent coin show the local tax collector let each dealer specify the amount of his sales on which to base the tax. It is said that a well-known dealer allowed that his sales had amounted to about $300, so the tax man asked for $3.00. Imagine the dealer's embarrassment when he pulled out a roll of bills from which to pay and found that he had nothing smaller than a $500. He borrowed $3 from a friend until he could get "change."

● When you want accuracy and facts, go to an expert. Here are statements by recognized expert economists in successive issues of an important weekly news magazine:

(A) "His (Arthur Burns) support for an incomes policy today . . . is disheartening to observe. I remain persuaded that an incomes policy, in any shape or form, is a dangerous expedient."

(B) "He (President Nixon) should take his cue from Arthur Burns and initiate a strong Presidential campaign against undue price and wage rises. Now that demand is weak, an incomes policy can have real effects . . ."

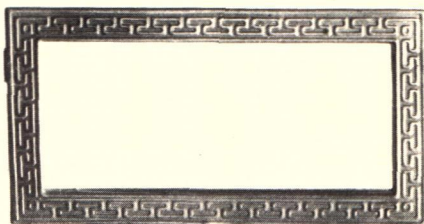

"When doctors differ who decides amid the milliard-headed throng?" The Kasidah of Haji Abdu El-Yezdi.

Legal Gold Coins 1934-1959

UNITED STATES TREASURY DEPARTMENT

Following is the latest list of foreign gold coins minted 1934-1959 which are eligible for import under license. The list was prepared by the Office of Domestic Gold and Silver Operations of the U.S. Treasury Department.

The coins listed, if genuine and of legal issue, are considered to be of such exceptional numismatic value as to warrant the issuance of licenses for their importation into the United States under the provisions of Section 54.20 (d) of the Treasury Department Gold Regulations.

The list is not of all foreign gold coins struck, but only those for which rulings have been made and licenses granted for importation.

NOTES & QUERIES

New York International Convention

A major East Coast numismatic convention devoted to ancient and foreign numismatics will take place Dec. 8-10 in New York City's Americana Hotel.

The New York International Numismatic Convention, the first in what is expected to be an annual event, will feature of bourse of leading professional numismatists, an interesting group of exhibits, and a public auction sale Dec. 8 and 9 by the Lester Merkin firm of New York City.

New Honor Group

The Medal of Honor History Roundtable has been formed due to an increasing interest in the study of the Medal of Honor. The aim of the group is to publish definitive work on the Medal of Honor and its recipients. Archives will be kept, members' research papers will be distributed to each other, and more important research will be submitted for publication in leading journals or published by the Medal of Honor History Roundtable. Thomas J. Kelly, CMH, past president of the Congressional Medal of Honor Society will be the liaison officer.

Associate membership applications are now being sought at an annual subscription rate of $10. The Roundtable will publish a mimeographed newsletter called Medal of Honor Historical Notes on a bi-monthly basis. Associate membership entitles one to the newsletter and discount prices on future publications.

Articles for use in the newsletter may be in any field of Medal of Honor research. They may be sent to Rudolf J. Friederich, director-editor, Ridge Road, Highland Mills, N. Y. 10930. Contributors need not be members.

Assistant editors will be named in each state to pilot reviews of all awards of the Medal of Honor in that state.

The address for additional information or for joining the organization is John E. Lelle, secretary-treasurer, 3828 Ronnald Dr., Philadelphia, Pa. 19154.

Letters from Members

German Furor

I noted with interest the paragraph on page 1066 of the July issue of The Numismatist in regard to Olympic Coins issued by several West German cities including Munich. I have one of them, but it doesn't happen to be one of the specific coins you pictured in your article.

Since you make no mention of the fact, I wonder if you are aware that these Olympic Game coins were preceded by one issued in West Germany but withdrawn from circulation because of a protest from the East German Government. I have one of them...One side reads BUNDERSREPUBLIK DEUTCHLAND (the Federal Republic of Germany) and the other side, SPIELE DER XX OLYMPIADE 1972 IN DEUTCHLAND (the games of the 20th Olympiad, 1972, in Germany). This is what brought the objection from the East German Government. It claimed that there is no such thing as Germany but there are two Germanies, one in the East and one in the West. They asked that the minting of the coin be discontinued and threatened that they would not participate under the same flag at the Games if their request was neglected. The West Germans then decided to follow this request and the new coins were minted as outlined in your story.

Louisiana Purchase Charged

In the June 1972 issue of The Numismatist there appeared an article by James H. Cohen, general chairman, 81st Anniversary Convention, 1972, entitled "What Kind of Money Was Used to Pay for Louisiana?" The answer is "None." Reference is made to The World Almanac and Book of Facts, 1967 edition, published by Newspaper Enterprise Association, Inc., Pg. 198.

"Louisiana Purchase. President Jefferson sent James Monroe to Paris to join Robert R. Livingston, American minister, in offering up to $10,000,000 for the Isle of Orleans (New Orleans) and West Florida. Napoleon, who had recovered Louisiana from Spain by secret treaty, offered all of Louisiana for $11,250,00 in bonds, plus $3,750,000 indemnities to American citizens with claims against France. U.S. took title Dec. 20."

Whether the bonds or indemnities were ever paid off is entirely another matter and could only have taken place at a much later time.

The hard cover volume was published in 1968 by the Society of Paper Money Collectors and was distributed by R.A. Glascock & Co. of San Antonio, Tex. The books now being made available to ANA members for $7.50 per copy, postpaid, originally sold for $10.50 each. They were donated to ANA by R.A. Glascock & Co.

Members may obtain the reference by ordering from the Library of the American Numismatic Association, P.O. Box 2366, Colorado Springs, Colorado 80901.

The book contains 204 pages and is illustrated. It is a unique work about a unique state.

"Starting in 1835 with handwritten promises to pay," the foreword explains, "Texas issued the currency known as Star Notes in 1837, then followed with the engraved interest bearing currency, the Republic or 'Redback' notes, and finally, the Exchequer notes. In addition, she issued drafts on the treasury, bonds, and scrip in the consolidated fund."

During the Civil War the prohibition against private banks and other private issues of currency was relaxed. Many cities, counties and individuals issued paper money in small quantities. Seldom are notes found with serial numbers of more than a thousand; they usually are in the low hundreds. Texas currency issues are divided into two periods, the Republic of Texas era (1835-1845) and the CSA era (1861-1865).

The book includes a rarity scale used with the listings. It would make a very useful addition to the library of any collector of Texas currency.

Hard - to - Get Medals Researched

MEDALS OF LIEUTENANT - GOVERNORS OF CANADA by Freeman Clowery, 1972, 60 pp. illus., Distributed by author, 1630 Dominion Ave., Sherbrooke, Quebec.

Since the days of Leroux and Breton we have had no books on Canadian medals other than the monumental works of Jamieson and Morin on Indian Chief medals and Ross Irwin on military medals of Canada.

Now we have from Freeman Clowery an excellent book, carefully researched, on the lieutenant governor medals of Canada. Because of the limited distribution of these medals (usually awarded for excellence in academic learning) they are a challenge to collect. The research, which has taken many years, included correspondence with and very often personal visits to the offices of the governor general, all the lieutenant governors, the archives of Canada and of the provinces, public museums and libraries, and the most prominent students and collectors of Canadian medals.

Practically all of the medals are illustrated in actual size and the illustrations are well done. The book is well printed and on good quality paper. It is not only a treasure house of information but also will serve as a conversation piece for anyone picking up a copy.

Lieutenant governor medals have been designed by many of the best sculptors and are an important series of works of art.

Most numismatists' collections contain at least a few medals. They lend atmosphere and are often the subject of conversation when visitors view a collection. This book should be in the library of every numismatist. — J.D. Ferguson

Seventh Edition

PAPER MONEY OF THE UNITED STATES by Robert Friedberg, 1972. 327 pages, illus., hard cover. Coin and Currency Institute, Inc., 393 Seventh Avenue, New York, N. Y. 10001. $14.00

The latest edition of the standard reference work on American currency by the late Robert Friedberg was brought up to date by Jack Friedberg, who worked closely with his late brother in compiling the original work. It illustrates and values all types and sizes of U.S. paper money from the first year of issue, 1861, to the present. Included are all issues of large size notes, current size notes, fractional currency and encased postage stamps.

One section, "National Bank Notes by States," illustrates and values by state every National Bank Note, more than 2,200 valuations in all, with a geographical and numerical list of all 14,348 National Banks.

The volume is 8½ by 11 inches in size.

Valuations have been revised and updated. Most of the notes, with the exception of some modern issues, were raised in price, with the biggest increases occurring in one, two and five dollar large size notes, particularly the $5 Silver Certificates of 1886 picturing silver dollars on the reverse, and the Indian Chief Onepapa $5 Silver Certificates of 1899.

For new collectors, there is an introductory text describing the origin and history of U.S. currency. It imparts information about seal and signature varieties and the dating of paper money. It also tells how to determine the rarity and condition of a note. And there is a helpful guide to collecting U.S. paper money.

Detailed Token Guide

U.S. CIVIL WAR STORE CARDS by George and Melvin Fuld, 1972. 615 pages, illus., hard cover. Dorge Approvals, P.O. Box 5745, Baltimore, Md. 21208. $25.00.

One of the problems met by the authors in compiling this book was deciding when a piece is not a Civil War token. They decided that any token bearing an actual Civil War die is called Civil War except when obviously of a later date (when the other side bears a later date, etc.).

More than 8,400 different tokens are listed in the work. The volume is the third and final effort in a Civil War token series by the authors. The initial booklet on patriotic tokens was published in 1960 by Whitman Publishing Co. and is now in its third edition. A Guide to Civil War Store Cards was published in 1962 by Whitman (no longer in print), and as stated then, it merely was a master index to the store card tokens, with some illustrations and an alphabetical index.

Included in the volume is a listing of all off-metal tokens (those made of something other than copper).

The work will undoubtedly be a welcomed addition to the libraries of serious token collectors.

BIEers Guide

BIE HANDBOOK edited by Howard O. Hardy, 1972. 109 pages, illus., soft cover. Joseph F. Bush, 4601 N.E. 3rd Ave., Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. 33308. $4.50

This work, published by the BIE Mint Oddity Collectors Guild, provides an orderly approach to the study of Liberty diebreaks. It also suggests organization in storing and helps in recognizing and indexing unreported specimens.

Purposes achieved by the reference, according to the editor, are that it has set forth standards, contains an integration of ideas and thinking, provides the hobbyist with a thorough understanding of his holdings and a fine discernment for future acquisition, and it supplies a means whereby every coin might be fitted into its rightful place.

The BIE is a diebreak between letters in the word "Liberty" on the Lincoln cent. According to members of the BIE Mint Oddity Collector's Guild it also stands for "Best In Errors." Both the handbook and the organization may be of help to the collector interested in such mint errors.

THE ALFRED R. GLOBUS COLLECTION OF GOLD COINS OF THE WORLD

STACK'S takes great pleasure in announcing that they will conduct the Public Auction Sale of The Alfred R. Globus Collection of Gold Coins of the World on October 19, 20, 21, 1972. Regardless of the area, nation or epoch you collect, there surely will be specimens offered that you will be proud to possess.

A brief outline of this collection...

LATIN AMERICAN COINS. Virtually every country in North, Central, and South America is represented by superb examples in different centuries. Various types commencing with Argentina, continuing with the splendid Spanish-Colonial coinage, and highlighted by such rarities as Salvador, Bolivia 1 Peso, Honduras, and Terra del Fuego.

NEAR AND FAR EAST COINS. This area of Numismatics contains many of the intriguing coins of Japan, China, India, Australia, German New Guinea, Egypt, Turkey, and other difficult-to-find countries. The quality of the coins in this series is outstanding, and further adds to the importance of this offering.

RUSSIAN AND BALKAN COINS. This part of the world is represented by a splendid group of Russian coins in magnificent condition, and abounds with many great rarities, including "finest knowns." The Balkan section is unusually broad in scope and is headed by a complete collection of coins of Montenegro.

ENGLISH AND FRENCH COINS. These two countries are amply represented by a select assemblage of coins from the 17th century to date. It is highlighted by a magnificent offering embracing all of the denominations, plus many great rarities, all in superb state of preservation.

NORTHERN AND LOW COUNTRIES. Rarely does the collector have the opportunity to acquire the illusive coins of the Scandinavian countries. Of particular note are the great rarities of the Netherlands, and the rare ducat coinage of Denmark and Sweden. All of these are in a fantastic state of preservation, with many "finest knowns" among the offering.

ITALY, SPAIN, PORTUGAL AND SWITZERLAND. The coinage of the southern countries of Europe can be found in this section. Many of the City States of Italy are represented here. Choice coins of Spain, highlighted by a Napoleonic rarity, are to be found here. The Portuguese series is also enhanced by great rarities.

GERMANY, AUSTRIA AND HOLY ROMAN EMPIRE. An outstanding offering of German State, City, and Empire coins, with many great rarities in Proof and Uncirculated. It is one of the choicest collections to be offered in many years.

UNITED STATES COINS. This series is highlighted by a Superb 1795 Half Eagle, other Early U.S. Gold coins, an 1879 Flowing Hair "Stella" $4.00 Gold, and a lovely range of dates and mints of Double Eagles. It is further enhanced by a splendid array of Pioneer and Territorial Gold coins.

We cannot stress too greatly the unusually high quality of virtually every single coin in the collection and vastness of its scope.

Profusely illustrated catalog now in preparation — $2.00 including Prices Realized after Sale.

"He built to last. The FBI will remain a living memorial to him."

A Giant, a Legend, an American Institution!

J. EDGAR HOOVER

the greatest G-Man of them all!

A most fitting tribute

To most Americans John Edgar Hoover was, as Pres. Nixon so aptly put it, "the symbol and embodiment of the values he cherished most: courage, patriotism, dedication to his country and a granite-like honesty and integrity."

56 years of his life were devoted to service of the United States, under eight presidents. 48 of those years Hoover spent building the FBI into a world-renowned law enforcement institution that will stand as a living memorial. He built to last.

The enduring qualities of beautiful medallic art make it an especially appropriate tribute to the great FBI chief—REMEMBER — MEDALS ARE FOREVER!

Sculptor Menconi presented Freedoms Foundation Award

Ralph J. Menconi, sculptor of many medal series for Presidential Art, has again distinguished himself as a sculptor and a scholar with the winning of the coveted FREEDOMS AWARD for the creation of medals of historic significance.

The fine hand of Menconi is apparent in the strong features, sculptured, in bold relief that so vividly portray the courage, fierce patriotism of law-loving Mr. Hoover. Forty-eight stars encircling the Obverse represent "J. Edgar's" 48 years as FBI chief. Hoover's signature is reproduced from a personal letter to Menconi in 1970. Design of the Reverse incorporates meaningful elements of the FBI seal: Scales for Justice, Laurel for Integrity. Figure of Justice represents Liberty, purpose and aims of the FBI.

The Hoover medal will be a proud possession for historians, law-loving Americans, and a must for any serious collector.

THE PRESIDENTS

"Cameos in Silver" by prestige creations

George Washington

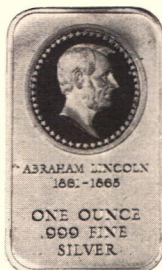

Thomas Jefferson

Franklin D. Roosevelt

Dwight D. Eisenhower

Abraham Lincoln

John F. Kennedy

It has often been said that "one picture is worth a thousand words." In the case of the remarkably beautiful silver ingots pictured above, a thousand pictures could not possibly capture the artistry and brilliance of these pieces. A new dimension has been added to medallic art by the creation of these ingots.

The frosted portraits of the Presidents are struck in high relief framed in an oval pool of brilliant proof, surrounded by a frosted field, a striking combination of finishes. These uniquely different silver cameos are truly a quality addition for any collection, struck in .999 fine silver, weighing one troy ounce.

WE OFFER

We have great confidence in the present coin market and we are showing this confidence by paying Top Dollar for Top Quality coins.

We do not need whizzed or processed coins which only appear to be BU (i.e. Barber Halves advertised at $79.50, Bust Halves at $32.50, etc.), but which in reality are no better than XF or possibly AU.

The first time that we ran this ad we received some of the worst "garbage" as BU that you can imagine. Please don't waste our time and yours unless your coins are Choice BU.

By the way, to command these prices, the early copper must be Brilliant, and not brown, Unc.

A NEW PROOF SET TO COMMEMORATE INDIA'S 25th ANNIVERSARY OF INDEPENDENCE

*The Silver
10 Rupee Coin—highlight of this commemorative proof set.*

OFFICIAL GOVERNMENT ISSUE PRICE: $15⁰⁰ per set
Plus 50¢ Handling Charge

Third Crown In Four Years

The newly-designed 10 Rupee coin pictured here is certainly the focal point of the 1972 India Proof Set. Although this is only the fourth year of issue, the new crown already represents the third distinct type, a real bonus for world crown collectors. The size of the silver 10 rupee coin is as new as the design, the diameter having been increased to 39 millimeters (approximately the size of a U. S. Silver Dollar.)

The elegant design of the new coin, created by Mr. P. B. Chitnis, Deputy Master of the India Government Mint, features two Indian youths holding the National Flag. The Indian Parliament House is in the background.

Another Commemorative Coin

The 1972 India proof set also contains an additional special commemorative coin, the 50 paise which bears the same obverse design as does the 10 rupee coin. And although these two new coins are the featured attractions of this set, there are seven other coins that have their own unique charm. Consider for example the 2 and 10 paise coins; both have scalloped edges! The set also has two square coins and even one that is hexagonal. The net result is a proof set that is truly distinctive, a definite cut apart from any other proof set issued in the world today.

The Official Issue Price Is Still The Same!

Although it contains two new commemorative coins, the 1972 India proof set is still available at only $15.00 per set, the same official issue price as for the first three years of issue. But to take advantage of this low issue price, you must send in your order no later than September 30, 1972. After that date no more orders can be accepted. The number of sets to be minted will exactly equal the number ordered before this deadline date and no additional examples of this outstanding commemorative issue will ever be struck. Since the 1972 India proof set will undoubtedly prove to be a highly desired collectors-item in the future, we suggest that you send in your order as soon as possible.

Deadline: September 30, 1972

ORDER FORM

NUM

Acceptance of orders is contingent upon the Mint's ability to meet the demand. Should the number of orders exceed the ability of the mint to produce these coins within the required production deadline, it may be necessary to effect a reduction or cancellation of some orders received. In the event of such reduction or cancellation, a full refund will be made of any undelivered sets.

MONUMENTAL SECOND EDITION

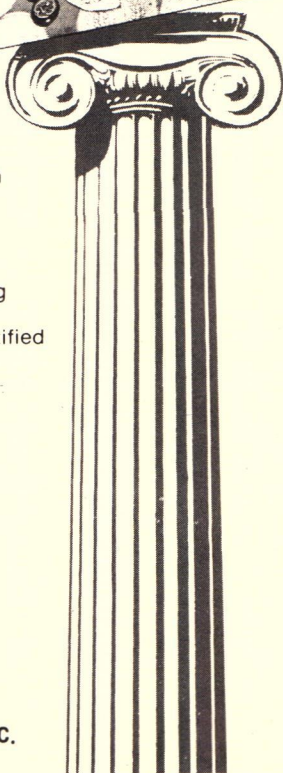

Seldom has a volume been so eagerly awaited as the second edition of Coins of the World 1750-1850. Continuing the consummate scholarship displayed in the original edition, William D. Craig brings further meaning and order to largely unexplored areas of the numismatic world. The second edition expands, revises, augments. Reorganization on a grand scale and numerous additions have necessitated increasing the book size to an impressive $7\text{-}3/4 \times 10\text{-}1/4$ inches. Coins are chronologically listed by country and identified by catalog number, date, metal and denomination. Condition grades have been added. Current retail values are shown. 448 pages. THE ALBERT A. GRINNELL COLLECTION OF UNITED STATES PAPER MONEY; a complete reprint in one, hard-cover, 700-page volume of the seven sales which comprised the most complete collection of United States paper money ever assembled by any individual.

Sales of 1944-46; complete reprint with all prices realized.

This indispensable reprint reference was released by us just a little over one year ago, in a LIMITED EDITION of only 1000 consecutively numbered copies at $25 each, and was enthusiastically received by collectors, researchers and dealers alike. This book is destined to become a collector's item, and will no doubt one day equal the rarity of the original catalogues, a bound set of which still brings $100 and up, when they can be found. As of this writing, there remain but 169 copies on hand, and inasmuch as this was a limited edition, there will be absolutely none available once these last few copies are sold. IT WILL NOT BE RE-PRINTED.

As a special service to A N A members, we are offering the remaining reprints at a special clearance price of only $12.50 per copy, postpaid. SEND YOUR CHECK OR MONEY ORDER NOW, as these few remaining copies will most certainly go quickly.

POLITICAL AMERICANA

Jackson, Harrison, Clay, Fremont, Lincoln and Douglas! All had campaign medals and tokens struck for them. They are the real "classics" of political collecting. Prices are still surprisingly low in contrast to some of the modern celluloid buttons. An 1840 Gen. W.H. Harrison, Whig party campaign token can be purchased for as little as $5.00 and I offer ten different varieties for $60.00. Choose from the largest stock in the country. My latest illustrated 10 page catalog (.50c - refundable with first purchase) lists hundreds of early 19th century political campaign medals and tokens along with many later celluloid pins. I have reprinted the 1888 classic "Presidential Campaign Medals" by Gustave Kobbe - a fascinating essay on collecting these pieces, with 50 woodcut illustrations only $1.00 per copy. 25 different pres. election buttons (originals) $5.00. 100 mixed 1972 election buttons $20.00.

Because of the above, we are even more anxious to buy your single pieces or collections of scarce coins and currency.

RECENT FOREIGN COINS

If you are now on my mailing list, each month you receive a listing of new issues received during the preceding month, along with listings of other purchases during the period.

The July and August lists, for example, contained new dates and new types of coins from Austria, Brazil, Canada, Costa Rica, Czechoslovakia, Equatorial Guinea, Germany, Iran, Iraq, Jamaica, Mozambique, Sierra Leone, South Viet Nam, Turkey, Vatican and Western Samoa, with perhaps a few others. I know of no other place where you would find this many assembled for your selection.

Dealers, each month I issue a supplement to the wholesale list (dealers only) covering additions to stock, with many new issues included, priced "per 10" and "per 100" so you can make some money.

No charge for these lists—and you might find something you are looking for.

GOLD RELIEF

A REVOLUTION IN COIN AND MEDAL PRODUCTION*

Commemorating the American Revolution Bicentennial: 1776-1976.

A beautiful medal of Gold and Silver is a dynamic way to commemorate the 200th anniversary of our great nation. It's especially appropriate for our own historic Gold Relief production — the famous patriot, artist, and metalsmith — Paul Revere.

Skillfully sculptured by the internationally known Don Dow, we believe this will become one of the most famous medals in numismatic history.

This historic first issue is the result of the latest space-age developments in gold metallurgy and three years of research in our own laboratories.

Here's how we do it:

Each planchet is produced by compressing microscopic grains of gold and silver under high pressure in special dies with the gold portion in the precise area of desired relief. Then the planchets are sintered in a controlled atmosphere furnace to join the two metals in a permanent molecular bond that forms one bi-metal unit. Finally, the planchet is struck in a numismatic press with specially engraved dies in exact alignment.

Result: a near perfect two-color coin or medal with a delicately-portrayed relief in rich 24 karat gold and a background of pure (.999) silver.

Limited Edition

The number of medals struck will be limited strictly to the number of orders postmarked prior to the October 30, 1972 deadline. Should the number exceed our production limitations, The Letcher Mint may have to cancel some orders. In this event, a full refund will be made on any undelivered medals. Many people will be disappointed because they will wait and send their order too late.

Each medal is a full 39mm (1.53") in diameter and packaged in a handsome plastic display case to allow a full view of both the obverse and reverse sides of the medal.

Full Money Back Guarantee

If you are not entirely convinced this is truly the world's most attractive and revolutionary medal, just return it within 10 days for a full refund.

An Elegant New Concept

The high bas-relief bust of Paul Revere is brilliant in Pure Gold (24K) while the background wreath and lettering are displayed in Pure Silver (.999). Don't confuse this with common gold plating. It is one amazing piece of metal—constructed so that the high bas-relief figure is in 24 karat Pure Gold!

Actual size of the medal is 39mm. Illustration of the obverse is enlarged to show detail.

REVERSE SIDE actual size

"One if by land and two if by sea..."

Two lights show in the tower of the Old North Church. Don Dow has sculptured the tower in exquisite detail... each brick, the hands on the clock at 10:35, the two lights in the belfry... all of these historic details are displayed in Pure Silver.
